

Incredible XL Late Medieval Carved Pedra de Ançã Portugese Column

An incredible XL column hand carved in Portuguese limestone (pedra de ançã) from the Coimbra region of central Portugal.

The column most likely originates from the cloister of a monastery.

Beautifully and heavily patinated with many age old repairs.

An incredibly rare & decorative sculptural architectural element.

The column is currently supported by a simple steel base for display and photography. For long-term or permanent installation, professional mounting would be recommended to ensure structural stability.
